

M'ADOO FIRM IN STAND TO RETAIN TARIFF ON SUGAR

George B. Isenberg of Honolulu Heard Secretary of Treasury Give Speech

That Secretary McAdoo is firm in his decision to ask Congress to retain the existing tariff on sugar and repeal that clause which would place it on the free list after May, 1916, was stated this morning by George B. Isenberg, who heard the Secretary of the Treasury speak in San Francisco the day before the Honolulu man left on the Wilhelmina, which arrived today.

"Mr. McAdoo showed plainly that he intends to stand for the retention of the existing tariff on sugar, as he has already indicated," said Mr. Isenberg. "In addressing the Commercial Club luncheon, at which I was present, he declared the question of tariff changes would be one of the first and most serious issues presented to Congress when it convenes again in December."

While in the exposition city Mr. Isenberg saw Thomas A. Edison several times. "The noted inventor always attracted attention wherever he went," said Mr. Isenberg. "I also saw Henry Ford, clad in overalls, giving an exhibition of assembling Ford cars and giving them away to prominent officials as soon as he had assembled them."

Mr. and Mrs. Isenberg passed some time at Lake Tahoe. Mrs. Isenberg is much improved in health as a result of her stay on the mainland. Both Mr. and Mrs. Isenberg said San Francisco was full of Honolulu people, and that everywhere they went in the city they met friends from Hawaii.

MORNING ON CHANGE

Were it not for Oahu the market would be a quiet institution these days. During the last 24 hours out of total sales of 1020 shares, Oahu furnished the trading in 700 shares—all at the uniform price of $7. Onomea has crawled up to $39, but the other active issues, Oahu Sugar, Hawaiian Commercial and Ewa, are unchanged. The miscellaneous list is still neglected, and Hilo, common, stands offered at 50 cents a share, with no bids.

CABLE REQUEST FOR SPECIAL TRANSPORT FOR OAHU ARMY MEN

With eyes turned toward Washington, officers and men on leave, with expired terms or under orders to go back to the mainland are anxiously awaiting reply to the wireless sent by the quartermaster's department to headquarters at the capital, asking for an extra transport to take back some of the men who have been waiting here for months for a chance to "go home."

Information that the Logan, which leaves here November 5, had but five first class and no second class accommodations, and that the Sheridan, which comes December 5, has not even room for a single man, led the quartermaster to ask Washington for an extra transport to relieve the situation. It was explained to the department that many men are waiting here with apparently no chance of getting away, and the urgent need of another transport at once was pointed out.

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence) SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Oct. 26.—The 1st Field Artillery was the last regiment to return to the post following the completion of the field maneuvers. The regiment arrived at Schofield Barracks at 3:20 p. m., Sunday. The regiment was employed Saturday in returning the siege guns and searchlights used during the field maneuvers to the various coast artillery posts where they belong.

Quite a number of changes were made yesterday in the assignment of officers of the 1st Field Artillery. Capt. Ned B. Rehkopf was relieved from the command of Battery F and appointed battalion adjutant, 2d battalion.

Capt. Henry S. Kilbourne, who recently arrived on the Sheridan, was assigned to command Battery F. Capt. P. D. Glassford was relieved from command of Battery B and appointed regimental quartermaster.

Capt. John W. Kilbreth, another recent arrival, was relieved from the unassigned list and appointed adjutant of the 1st battalion.

The assignments of the lieutenants who arrived on the Sheridan for duty with the 1st Field Artillery were as follows: 1st Lieut. Frederick Stewart, to Battery A; 2d Lieut. Cliff Andrus, to Battery B; 3d Lieut. John N. Hauser, to Battery E.

2d Lieut. Edwin J. O'Hara and a detachment of coast artillerymen arrived at Schofield Barracks yesterday and went into camp near the 1st infantry gardens. They have taken charge of two 5-inch siege guns and two 7-inch howitzers brought up from Honolulu Sunday by a detachment of the 1st Field Artillery. They are being installed with their platforms near the old stone crusher on the north side of Kaukonahua gulch.

Lieut.-col. Frank W. Coe is expected to arrive tomorrow with four companies of coast artillery to engage in siege artillery target practice.

ARMY NOTES

Published statements that the 12th regiment, infantry, which has been on the border near Nogales, Arizona, for many months has been ordered to Honolulu are not credited by army officers here. No such order has been issued, as far as can be ascertained, and it is not probable that the regiment will be moved here until more barracks room is provided.

San Diego papers first published the report that the 12th was coming here. The rumor probably grew out of the general knowledge that 6000 troops are to be sent here as soon as possible.

For the purpose of investigating a collision between a motorcycle ridden by William D. Redmon, a former soldier, now employed at department headquarters, and an automobile driven by Sgt. William D. Walters, Hospital Corps, a board of officers has been appointed to meet at Schofield Barracks. Those on the board are Capt. J. A. Benjamin, 4th Cavalry; 2d Lieut. Percy Deshon, 1st Field Artillery; 2d Lieut. Livingston Watrous, 25th Infantry.

2d Lieut. Edwin J. O'Hara, Coast Artillery Corps, in command of detachments of the 55th, 65th, 91st and 159th Companies, Coast Artillery Corps, will proceed to Schofield Barracks for the purpose of making preliminary arrangements for the annual siege gun and howitzer practice of the Coast Artillery companies.

The coast defense command, Coast Defense of Oahu, will inspect Forts Armstrong, De Russy, Kaneohe and Roger November 5. Attendance in ranks will be the same as required in muster.

Lieut.-col. Frank R. Keefer, Medical Corps, post surgeon at Schofield Barracks, has been appointed recruiting officer at that post, relieving Capt. Samuel S. Creighton, Medical Corps.
